

An aerial night photograph of Trondheim, Norway. The central focus is the Trondheim Spektrum arena, a large building with a curved, wood-clad exterior and a dark, arched roof. It is surrounded by lush green trees. In the background, the city of Trondheim is visible, including a prominent church with a tall, illuminated spire. To the left, a harbor area is filled with numerous sailboats. In the far distance, across the water, a small island with a few buildings is visible under a dark, twilight sky.
